

Having a Blast as a Chloroplast!

By Mrs. Masters

Oh my, I cannot even believe the day I am having! My cell is really hungry, so I must not be doing my job. Hello, I am a chloroplast in a plant cell, a Rose Plant to be specific. I'm not feeling very green these days because my cell has not been getting a lot of sunlight. I need to make food for my plant cell in order for it live and grow. My key ingredient is the sun. I'm really going to have to make sure to lay out and catch some rays today.

Whoo! It's getting pretty warm in here. I am loving these sunlight showers! They make me produce chlorophyll, which turns me and the rest of my plant cells green. Now I can produce food for my cell! Give me some shades, this sunlight is intense. Catch everyone later, I have some food to make for my cell!
